RE: The professional First Aid training provided by Mr Andrew Miller

This letter serves to inform you that Mr Andrew Miller has been conducting First Aid training for members of the Field Guides Association of Southern Africa for a number of years. His training is very professional and he has produced a large number of competent First responders within the membership ranks of the Association.

Mr Andrew Miller has been endorsed by the Association based on his professional approach to the training of the First Aid skills required for tourist guides (in particular nature guides) to carry out their job function as professional guides who are competent to handle emergency situations.

On behalf of the Association I would recommend Mr Andrew Miller to any organisation wanting to develop First Aid competency. He is a well respected First Aid trainer and is a member in good standing of the Association.

Yours sincerely

Grant Hine
